Sun and Earth.
According to the astronomical principles of "solar-parallax," which means the apparent position of a heavenly body and its true place in space, July 5, the earth reached its greatest distance from the sun, revolving 3,200,000 miles farther away from the sun than at the time of its nearest approach six months ago, about the first of January, says the Washington Star.

While the direct rays of the summer's sun is so suggestive of its proximity to the surface of the earth, yet in the physics of the heavens and in accordance with the position of our abode in space the earth has the direct rays of the summer's distant sun and the oblique rays of the winter's nearer sun.

In the survey of the mechanics of the heavens there is much to impress and much which is calculated to awaken conceptions as to the stupendous scale on which the heavens are constructed, and all embraced in what astronomers regard "the noblest problem in astronomy"—"the solar-parallax."

The quantities dealt with are so minute that their size grasp asks all the resources of modern science. For the past centuries, taking the semi-diameter of the earth's orbit as the standard measure for the universe, astronomers from Tycho Brahe and Galileo to the present time have been studying the question of the sun's distance from the consideration of its temperature, seemingly "so near and yet so far."

Astronomers of the eighth century hoped to settle the question of the sun's distance, having the occurrence of the transit of Venus and the repeated opposition of Mars every fifteen years as the basis to solve this problem, and thereby come to some permanent settlement of the statistics of our solar system, but they failed—so many were the conflicting conclusions of all the various quantities from which the sun's parallax depends. From 1822, when the great German astronomer Encke published his results which placed the sun's distance from us at 93,250,000 miles, there seems to have been a universal acquiescence which lasted for thirty years, when Hansen, in 1854, supported by Leverrier, in 1858, found an apparent monthly oscillation of diminution of 4,000,000 miles.

After years of exhaustive observation through all the phenomena upon which the sun's parallax depends, and mathematical rules of probability by the great astronomers of the known world, it is an honor to the progress of American astronomy and pleasing to the theoretical student of astronomy to recall that on the question of solar-parallax and light transmission three of the leading American astronomers, Prof. Newcomb, Hall and Harkness arrived at practically the same value of solar-parallax of 8.81", which means 92,700,000 miles as the length of the earth's mean orbital radius.

OUR SECOND Anniversary and Clean-up Sale of Summer Merchandise Now in Progress

Another year has rolled around and the result shows a marked appreciation of our "One Price Cash" Policy. Our business has steadily increased during the past two years, far beyond our expectations.

Our first anniversary sale was in a way a revelation to the people of Norway and vicinity as it showed our advertised claims were fully backed up with the goods, and that the reductions were real and positive.

Our second anniversary and clean-up sale has been of even greater importance than the one of a year ago. This is a genuine clean-up stock sale and we are offering our merchandise at decided reductions, so as to clean out this season's goods before the arrival of new fall goods. Positively only our regular stocks are being offered you. There are many remnants, short ends and discontinued numbers which are marked without regard to cost, just to close out quickly.

This sale is an annual event with us and it means genuine savings to everyone who will buy at this time. You'll find everything just exactly as advertised, without exaggeration, with one cash price to all. SALE CLOSES SATURDAY NIGHT AUGUST 9th.

Tobacco That Comes To You Cut Up, Comes Dried Up

Nature never intended anything she grows to be cut up until just before it is used. Everybody knows that food should be fresh—and so should tobacco.

Sickle Plug comes to you fresh—with all the original flavor and moisture pressed into the plug. You slice up the tobacco as you use it, and the last pipeful smokes as cool, sweet and satisfying as the first—because the natural leaf wrapper keeps Sickle Plug fresh. The chopped-up tobacco that comes in packages cannot help getting dry, smoking hot and scorching.

Try a plug of Sickle today—get more tobacco, by having no package to pay for—and get more enjoyment by smoking fresh tobacco. At all dealers.
